

MK PARRISH · MKPARRISH.COM

THE SOCIAL STRATEGY PLAYBOOK: A CONTENT SYSTEM YOU'LL ACTUALLY USE

THE SOCIAL STRATEGY PLAYBOOK: A CONTENT SYSTEM YOU'LL ACTUALLY USE

Format: Digital template pack (Google Docs + PDF)

Price: $38

Audience: Founders and thought leaders who know they need to show up online — and want a repeatable system instead of relying on inspiration.

What this is

Most people don't have a content problem. They have a system problem. They post when they feel like it, the posts don't sound like them, and the whole thing collapses the first busy week. Consistency feels like willpower, so it never lasts.

This is the strategy and framework side of The Social Suite — MK Parrish's managed content service — isolated so you can run it yourself, at your own pace, without a retainer. It is the same thinking used to onboard new Social Suite clients, documented for self-study.

It covers the full content strategy build: how to find the topics you can speak on with authority, how to make your voice survive the jump to each platform, and how to batch and structure content so you're never starting from a blank page again. It is a system, not a mood board.

What's included

SECTION 1: BEFORE YOU POST ANYTHING

The authority brief

One page. Five questions. Every piece of content you make comes from the answers:

1. Who is this for? (One specific person, not "my audience.")
2. What do you want to be known for in one sentence?
3. What do you believe about your field that most people in it don't say out loud?
4. What does this person need to believe before they'll trust you?
5. What's the one action you want to be top-of-mind for when they're ready?

If you can't answer these, more posting won't help. Clarity comes first.

The voice snapshot

Three adjectives, three banned words, and one "sounds like me" sentence. This is what keeps your content from drifting into generic industry filler the moment you're tired or rushed.

SECTION 2: THE CONTENT PILLAR FRAMEWORK

The single most useful decision you'll make: choosing three to five content pillars — the themes you return to again and again. Pillars are why people follow you for a reason instead of scrolling past.

How to find your pillars:

- The expertise pillar — what you know cold, the thing people already ask you about.
- The point-of-view pillar — what you believe that's a little contrarian. This is what builds authority, not just reach.
- The proof pillar — results, process, and the work itself, shown not claimed.
- The human pillar — the story, the journey, the reason you care. This is what builds trust.
- The optional fifth pillar — seasonal, community, or behind-the-scenes.

For each pillar you'll define: the core promise, three to five recurring angles, and example hooks. Five pillars × four angles = twenty content ideas before you've tried.

SECTION 3: BRAND VOICE CALIBRATION BY PLATFORM

Your voice is one thing. How it lands changes by room. The same idea is a carousel on Instagram, a short essay on LinkedIn, and a spoken hook on TikTok — and getting the translation right is the difference between content that travels and content that sits.

Instagram — visual-first. How to write the first line so it survives the "more" cut, caption structures for carousels vs. single posts, and when the caption carries the weight vs. the image.

LinkedIn — credibility-first. The hook-to-payoff structure, why the first two lines are the whole game, formatting for the feed, and how to have a point of view without sounding like a motivational poster.

TikTok / Reels — spoken-first. Writing for the ear, the three-second hook, scripting that doesn't sound scripted, and on-screen text that does its own job.

Each platform gets a calibration table: tone, length, hook style, and the one mistake to avoid.

SECTION 4: THE 30-DAY CONTENT SPRINT

The same structure used to onboard new Social Suite clients. A month of content, planned and batched, so posting becomes execution instead of invention.

- The sprint calendar: 30 days mapped across your pillars so no single theme dominates and nothing repeats too soon.
- The batch workflow: how to write a month in two sittings — ideation, then production — instead of scrambling daily.
- The caption structure: the repeatable hook → context → payoff → CTA frame, with fill-in starters.
- The repurposing map: turn one strong idea into a LinkedIn post, an Instagram carousel, and a Reel without it feeling recycled.

SECTION 5: THE POSTING SYSTEM

A system you keep is worth more than a strategy you admire. This is how the whole thing runs without depending on motivation.

- The weekly rhythm: a realistic cadence by platform — what's enough, what's too much, and what to drop first when life happens.
- The content bank: how to keep a backlog of ready-to-post pieces so a bad week never breaks the streak.

- The review loop: the few numbers actually worth watching, and how to read them without spiraling.
 - The recovery plan: exactly how to restart when you fall off — because you will, and that's not failure, it's the system working as designed.
-

Templates Included

All templates are provided as Google Docs you can copy to your Drive:

1. Authority brief (1 page)
 2. Voice snapshot (1 page)
 3. Content pillar map (with example angles and hooks)
 4. Platform calibration tables (Instagram, LinkedIn, TikTok)
 5. 30-day sprint calendar (fill-in)
 6. Caption structure template (with starters)
 7. Posting tracker + content bank (the system that keeps it running)
-

Who this is for

- Founders building a personal brand who need a strategy behind the posts, not just ideas
 - Thought leaders who know they should show up but have no system for it
 - Anyone whose content feels like generic industry filler instead of them
 - People who want to batch content in advance instead of scrambling week to week
-

What you'll leave with

- Three to five content pillars that give people a reason to follow you
 - A voice that survives the jump to every platform
 - A 30-day sprint planned and ready to batch
 - A posting system that runs on structure instead of inspiration
-

This is the self-guided companion to The Social Suite — MK's managed content strategy, writing, and execution service. If you're working with the team, this is the framework behind the work. If you're doing it yourself, this is the system.

→ $38. All templates included. Immediate download.