WHAT THIS IS

Brand deals do not start when a company says yes. They start when your public presence makes the answer easier.

The Brand Deal Room is the working folder every serious creator needs before the next pitch goes out: media kit copy, rate card logic, offer menu, email scripts, usage-rights questions, and a simple tracker for moving a brand from "maybe someday" to "invoice sent."

Most creators wait too long to look professional. They keep the rate in their head, the proof scattered across screenshots, the pitch half-written in Notes, and the relationship living in DMs. Then a brand asks for details and the creator scrambles.

This fixes the scramble.

“

If a brand has to guess what you sell, what it costs, and why your audience listens, the deal is already leaking.

SECTION ONE: THE PARTNERSHIP POSITION

Before you make a media kit, write the sentence that explains why a brand should care.

Use this frame:

I help [specific audience] discover [specific kind of product or idea] through [your content style or authority], so brands get [measurable or emotional result].

Examples:

- I help first-time apartment decorators find useful, beautiful home products through warm short-form reviews, so brands get trust before the click.
- I help ambitious women rebuild their personal style after major life changes through try-ons, story-driven captions, and honest fit notes, so brands get buyers who feel seen.
- I help early-stage founders understand marketing tools through plain-English demos, so brands get qualified attention instead of empty reach.

Your partnership position should not sound like "I make lifestyle content." It should explain the commercial reason your audience pays attention.

The Three Proof Types

Put these in your kit before follower count.

1. Audience proof: who watches, reads, saves, replies, and buys.
2. Content proof: examples of posts that carried trust, teaching, taste, or conversion.
3. Commercial proof: affiliate revenue, clicks, DMs, sellouts, waitlist growth, coupon use, or testimonials.

If you do not have sales proof yet, use behavior proof. Saves, replies, link clicks, and repeated questions are all signs that your audience moves.

SECTION TWO: THE MEDIA KIT PAGE

Build one clean page first. A beautiful 12-page deck will not save unclear positioning.

The One-Page Structure

Use this order:

1. Name and partnership position
2. Audience snapshot
3. Content lanes
4. Partnership menu
5. Proof
6. Rates or "starting at"
7. Contact

Copy Blocks To Steal

Header:

MK Parrish-style frame: "I make [category] content for [audience] who [specific desire/problem]."

Audience:

"My audience comes for [topic], stays for [voice/point of view], and trusts me because [reason]."

Content lanes:

"I partner best with brands in [3 categories]. My strongest formats are [formats]. I am not a fit for [boundaries]."

Proof line:

"Recent sponsored or affiliate content has driven [result], [result], and [result]."

If you do not have paid proof yet:

"Organic content repeatedly drives [behavior], which makes sponsored integration feel native instead of bolted on."

Do not pad. A brand manager is scanning for fit, risk, and speed. Give them all three.

SECTION THREE: THE RATE CARD

Rates are not morality. They are math plus confidence.

Start with a simple menu:

OFFER	INCLUDES	STARTING RATE
Short-form video	1 TikTok/Reel, 3-month organic usage	$___
Story set	3-5 frames, link sticker, 24-hour live window	$___
Carousel	6-8 slides, caption, organic usage	$___
UGC package	3 raw videos for brand channels, no organic post	$___
Bundle	1 video + story set + usage rights	$___

The Rate Formula

Use this as a starting point:

Base creation fee + audience access + usage rights + exclusivity + complexity = quote.

Base creation fee pays for production. Audience access pays for posting to your account. Usage rights pay for the brand using your content on their channels or in ads. Exclusivity pays for categories you cannot promote. Complexity pays for extra rounds, travel, scripts, revisions, or legal review.

Usage Rights Questions

Ask these before quoting:

- Will the brand repost organically?
- Will the brand run this as paid media?
- Which platforms will it run on?
- How long do they want usage rights?
- Do they need raw files?
- Do they need whitelisting or creator licensing?
- Is category exclusivity required?

If they cannot answer, quote the basic organic package first and price paid usage separately.

SECTION FOUR: PITCH SCRIPTS

Warm Pitch

Subject: Partnership idea for [Brand]

Hi [Name],

I have been using/following [specific product or campaign] and had a content idea I think would land with my audience of [audience].

The angle: [one-sentence idea].

Why it fits: my audience regularly asks about [proof], and this would let me show [product] in a way that feels useful, specific, and native to my content.

I can send a one-page media kit and a few package options if partnerships are on your roadmap this month.

Best,

[Name]

Follow-Up

Hi [Name],

Floating this back up in case it got buried. I still think [angle] is a strong fit for [brand] because [audience reason].

Happy to send a tighter concept or rate card if useful.

Best,

[Name]

Inbound Reply

Hi [Name],

Thank you for thinking of me. This sounds aligned.

Before I quote, can you confirm:

- deliverables
- timeline
- usage rights
- whether paid media/whitelisting is included
- exclusivity requirements
- budget range

Once I have those, I can send the cleanest package recommendation.

Best,

[Name]

SECTION FIVE: THE PARTNERSHIP TRACKER

Use a simple table:

BRAND	CONTACT	FIT	IDEA	STATUS	NEXT STEP	QUOTE	NOTES
Brand A	Name/email	High	Demo + story	Pitched	Follow up Friday	$___	Asked about usage

Statuses:

- Watchlist
- Pitched
- Replied
- Brief requested
- Quoted
- Negotiating
- Contract sent
- Invoice sent
- Content live
- Follow-up sent

The tracker is not admin. It is revenue memory. Creators lose money when every partnership lives in a different app, thread, or mood.

KEEP GOING

If you want the content system underneath the pitch, use The Social Strategy Playbook. If you want the AI prompts for drafting in your voice, use The AI Content Twin. If you want the full creator monetization stack in one place, open The Services Vault.

Do not wait until you feel like a "real creator" to build the room. Build the room, then invite the money into it.
