WHAT THIS IS

UGC is not "make a video and hope the brand likes it." UGC is commercial creative.

The UGC Brief Bank gives you the productized version: what to sell, how to package it, how to write hooks, how to structure a paid concept, and how to make the deliverable useful to a brand beyond one pretty clip.

This is for creators who can make content but need the business spine around it. The money is not only in the video. The money is in the repeatable brief.

“A brand is not buying your camera roll. They are buying a usable asset that helps a buyer believe faster.”

SECTION ONE: WHAT UGC ACTUALLY SELLS

UGC sells one of five jobs:

1. Attention: the opening moment stops the scroll.
2. Understanding: the product becomes easier to understand.
3. Trust: the buyer hears a real person explain why it matters.
4. Objection handling: a fear or hesitation gets answered.
5. Action: the viewer knows what to do next.

Every concept you pitch should name the job. "I can make three videos" is weak. "I can make three objection-handling videos for first-time buyers" is stronger.

The Deliverable Menu

Start with three packages.

PACKAGE	INCLUDES	BEST FOR
Starter UGC	3 raw videos, 15–30 sec each	Testing hooks
Conversion Set	5 videos across problem, demo, proof, objection, CTA	Paid ads
Launch Bank	10 short videos + hook variations + raw footage	New product push

Add-ons:

- raw footage
- alternate hooks
- vertical photos
- product photography
- paid usage
- whitelisting
- monthly retainer
- rush delivery

The menu keeps you from building a custom business every time someone asks what you charge.

SECTION TWO: THE FIVE BRIEF TYPES

1. The Problem-Aware Brief

Use when the buyer knows the pain but not the product.

Hook frames:

- "If you keep [problem], try this."
- "I did not realize [problem] was coming from [cause]."
- "This is the tiny thing that fixed [annoyance]."

Structure:

1. Name the problem.
2. Show the product in context.
3. Explain the mechanism.
4. End with the simple next action.

2. The Demo Brief

Use when the product needs to be seen.

Hook frames:

- "Watch what happens when..."
- "I tested [product] so you do not have to."
- "Here is exactly how I use [product]."

Structure:

1. Show the product immediately.
2. Do the action on camera.

3. Narrate the change.
4. Name who it is for.

3. The Objection Brief

Use when buyers hesitate.

Hook frames:

- "I thought this would be [objection]. I was wrong."
- "If you are worried about [objection], watch this."
- "The question I had before buying..."

Structure:

1. Admit the hesitation.
2. Test or explain the answer.
3. Show proof.
4. End with the buyer feeling safer.

4. The Comparison Brief

Use when the buyer is choosing between options.

Hook frames:

- "[Old way] vs [new way]."
- "I replaced [alternative] with [product]."
- "The difference between cheap and useful..."

Structure:

1. Show the before.
2. Show the product.
3. Compare one real decision point.
4. Do not exaggerate.

5. The Lifestyle Proof Brief

Use when the product is emotional, aesthetic, or identity-driven.

Hook frames:

- "The thing I did not know I needed..."
- "This made my morning feel less chaotic."
- "A small upgrade that actually stayed in my routine."

Structure:

1. Put the product inside a real moment.
2. Let the feeling be specific.
3. Show usage, not just possession.
4. Close with memory, not hype.

SECTION THREE: SCRIPT TEMPLATES

Demo Script

"I wanted to test [product] because [problem]. Here is what I noticed first: [detail]. I used it for [specific use], and the biggest difference was [change]. If you are [buyer], this is useful because [reason]."

Objection Script

"I almost skipped this because I thought [objection]. The part I did not understand was [mechanism]. After using it, [proof]. So if your question is [question], here is my honest answer: [answer]."

Founder/Expert Script

"Most people think [common belief]. The real issue is [truth]. That is why [product/category] matters. When [buyer] uses it correctly, [result]."

Short CTA Lines

- "Save this before you buy."
- "Use this if [specific condition]."
- "Start here if you are comparing options."
- "This is the feature I would check first."
- "If I were buying again, this is what I would want to know."

SECTION FOUR: THE MONTHLY UGC RETAINER

Retainers are easier to sell when the scope is boring and useful.

Example monthly package:

- 8 raw videos
- 16 alternate hooks
- 1 monthly creative call
- usage rights for 30 days
- 1 revision round
- delivery in one organized folder

Do not promise virality. Promise a usable testing bank.

Position it like this:

"This gives your paid team enough raw creative to test angles every week without starting from zero."

That is a business offer. "I make cute videos" is not.

SECTION FIVE: THE BRAND INTAKE

Ask every brand:

- Who is the buyer?
- What are they already trying?
- What objections stop them?
- What claims can I legally make?
- What claims should I avoid?
- What formats have worked before?
- Where will the content run?
- How long do you need usage rights?
- What is the approval process?

Good UGC does not start with filming. It starts with understanding what the asset has to do.

KEEP GOING

Pair this with The Brand Deal Room for pitching and rates. Use The Repurposing Engine when one UGC concept needs to become scripts, captions, hooks, and posts. Use The AI Content Twin when you want prompts that draft the first pass without flattening your voice.

You do not need a massive following to sell useful creative. You need a clear brief, a clean menu, and the nerve to quote the work like work.
