THE AUTHORITY CAROUSEL KIT

Turn One Idea Into a Scroll-Stopping LinkedIn Carousel

BY MK PARRISH • $48

WHAT THIS IS

This is the exact carousel system behind the MK Parrish brand — the house style, the seven-slide story, the voice rules, and the build process — packaged so you can run it yourself.

You do not need a designer. You do not need Canva. You write the words into a small text file, run one command, and get LinkedIn-ready slides plus a multi-page PDF out the other side. Same look every time. No dragging boxes, no fighting alignment, no "why did the font change."

The kit is three things:

1. The formula — how to turn one idea into a finished carousel, slide by slide.
2. The templates — ready-to-edit JSON files for the formats that actually travel on LinkedIn.
3. The system — the house style and voice rules that make every slide look and sound like one person made it on purpose.

Reading it does nothing. Filling in a template and shipping it is the product.

Authority is not a louder post. It is the same clear point of view, shown the same clean way, every single week until people associate the look with you.

THE HOUSE STYLE

Every carousel uses the same visual system. Consistency is the asset — when your slides look the same each week, the look itself becomes recognizable, and recognition is the beginning of authority.

- 1080 × 1080 square pages — the native LinkedIn carousel ratio.
- Near-black editorial background with a restrained blush-pink glow. No bright white decks.
- Your name top left, page count top right. Quiet, consistent, unmistakable.
- Bebas Neue uppercase headlines. DM Sans body. Playfair Display italic signature.
- Pearl white, smoke grey, and one petal pink — used only on the word carrying the tension.
- Left-aligned copy, generous negative space. White space reads as confidence.
- A pink SWIPE → block bottom left your handle bottom right.
- No rounded cards, stock icons, overpowering gradients, or generic Canva decoration.

The rule under all of it: nothing decorative earns its place. If an element is not carrying the idea, it is in the way.

THE SEVEN-SLIDE STORY

The default carousel is a seven-slide arc. The slide count can flex when the idea demands it, but the rhythm stays the same — tension, then proof, then a rule, then one move.

1. Cover — a strong promise with sharp tension. The whole swipe is earned or lost here.
2. Problem — name what the audience is getting wrong. Make them feel seen.
3. Evidence 01 — your first proof: a before/after, an example, a step.
4. Evidence 02 — the second.
5. Evidence 03 — the third. Three is the number that feels complete without dragging.
6. Principle — distill the lesson into one memorable rule they can repeat.
7. CTA — one specific next move. Not "thoughts?" — a real action.

The arc works because it mirrors how trust actually forms: you name the pain, you prove you understand it, you hand over a rule, and then — only then — you ask for something.

VOICE RULES

The look gets the swipe. The voice gets the follow.

- Clear over clever, but never bland.
- Specific outcomes instead of adjectives. "Onboarding cut from six weeks to six days," not "we drive efficiency."
- One idea per slide. If a slide has two points, it is two slides.
- Headlines sound like you, not a corporate content team.
- Body copy stays conversational and decisive.
- Avoid em dashes, jargon fog, and manufactured inspiration.
- Pink emphasis is a scalpel, not a highlighter — one word per slide, the word that carries the tension.

THE FORMULA: ONE IDEA → ONE CAROUSEL

You do not start with seven slides. You start with one sentence and pressure-test it.

Step 1 — Find the one idea. Finish this: "Most people in my field believe _____, but the truth is _____." That tension is your cover.

Step 2 — Name the cost. What does the wrong belief actually cost the reader — in money, time, or standing? That is slide two.

Step 3 — Find three proofs. The fastest, most credible proof is the before/after. Take three weak examples and rewrite each one strong. Real beats hypothetical every time.

Step 4 — Write the rule. Compress the whole lesson into one line short enough to screenshot. If it takes two sentences, keep cutting.

Step 5 — Pick one move. A checklist, a free resource, a DM prompt, a booked call. One. A carousel that asks for two things gets neither.

That is the entire method. The templates below are this formula, pre-poured into the right shape.

THE TEMPLATES

Three editable JSON templates ship with this kit, plus a worked example. Each is the same formula in a different shape:

- template-teardown.json — before/after rewrites. The highest-converting format for anyone who sells words, positioning, design, or strategy. Show the weak version, show yours, name the rule.
- template-steps.json — a numbered method or framework. For teaching a repeatable process you want to be known for.
- template-story.json — a personal pivot or lesson. For the human pillar — the posts that build trust, not just reach.
- example-homepage-rewrite.json — a complete, shipped carousel you can read end to end to see the system working.

Each template is commented with where your words go. You change the copy, not the structure — the structure is what keeps every carousel on-brand.

Inline formatting

Inside any JSON copy field:

- {{word}} makes a word petal pink — your one emphasis per slide.
- phrase makes body copy bold.

That is the entire markup language. Two marks. Everything else is just writing.

HOW TO BUILD

You need Node.js installed once. After that, every carousel is one command.

1. Duplicate a template and rename it — for example `content/linkedin/carousels/my-idea.json`.
2. Write your copy into the fields. One idea per slide. Keep it tight.
3. Run the build:

npm run linkedin:carousel -- content/linkedin/carousels/my-idea.json

You get individual PNG slides and a LinkedIn-ready multi-page PDF in `output/linkedin//`. Upload the PDF to LinkedIn as a document post, and the slides become a native swipeable carousel.

No design tool. No subscription. No alignment wars. The same clean deck, every time, in the time it takes to write the words.

SHIP IT: THE POSTING RHYTHM

A carousel kit is only an asset if it ships. Three rules keep it alive:

- One carousel a week beats four in a burst. The look compounds through repetition. Pick a day and defend it.
- Lead with the teardown format until people know you for it. A recognizable format is its own authority signal.
- Put the same CTA on every cover and last slide for a month. Repetition is how a "next move" becomes a habit in your reader.

You will not out-discipline a blank canvas. Build the template once and let it carry the weeks your motivation doesn't show up.

WHEN YOU'D RATHER NOT

This kit is the do-it-yourself version of a managed service. If at any point you'd rather hand it off:

- The Social Suite — branded carousels, captions, and a full content engine, built and run for you every month.
- A Strategy Session — sixty minutes to map your authority angle, your pillars, and your first five carousel concepts together.

Both live at mkparrish.com. But you don't need either to start. You have the system in your hands. Write the one idea. Ship the swipe.
