THE POSITIONING CHECKLIST

Most copy doesn't fail because the sentences are bad. It fails because the positioning underneath the sentences is blurry — so no rewrite, no clever headline, no amount of "make it punchier" can save it. You're polishing a window in a house with no foundation.

This is the audit I run before I touch a word of anyone's copy. Twelve questions. Go through them honestly. Every no is a leak — a place your copy is losing people before they ever get to your offer. Fix the leaks first. Then the writing gets easy, because there's finally something true to write toward.
