

The Rewrite Starter Checklist

Seven days. Seven moves. The pocket version of the work — the one I send before you ever spend a dollar. Print it, work it, keep it. When you're ready for the full method, the workbook is waiting.

DAY 01 Find the narrator

- ☐ Name one story you tell about yourself that you didn't write.
- ☐ Identify who first handed you that line — a parent, a boss, an ex, a magazine.
- ☐ Write the sentence down exactly as you've been repeating it.

DAY 02 Audit the rooms

- ☐ List the three rooms — work, love, family — where you feel smallest.
- ☐ For each, ask: does this room want me to grow, or stay convenient?
- ☐ Mark the one room you'd change first if permission weren't required.

DAY 03 Cancel one lease

- ☐ Pick one thing you've been tolerating and calling "just life."
- ☐ Calculate what it actually costs you — energy, time, peace.
- ☐ Decline to renew it this week. One thing. Not all of it.

DAY 04 Reprice yourself

- ☐ Write the number you'd charge / ask for if you weren't afraid.
- ☐ Notice the story that makes the number feel dangerous.
- ☐ Say the number out loud once, with no apology attached.

DAY 05 Rewrite the headline

- ☐ Replace your job title with a verb and an outcome.
- ☐ Cut every adjective you can't back with proof.
- ☐ Read it out loud — if it sounds like a résumé, rewrite it.

DAY 06 Take the boring first step

- ☐ Choose the move that takes under 30 minutes.
- ☐ Do it before you finish reading this line.
- ☐ Tell one person you did it.

DAY 07 Sign the permission slip

- ☐ Write, in your own handwriting: I am the author now.
- ☐ Pick the next chapter you'll draft on purpose.
- ☐ Schedule the repeat — same boring step, next Tuesday.
