GROWTH STRATEGY PREVIEW

TRIPLE AMAZON ROI. GROW THE WHOLE BRAND.

How I would turn Amazon from Nature's Value's weakest channel into its biggest, and use @dr.michaelmurray's authority to do it.

RESUME · SIGNATURE | RESUME · CLASSIC | COVER LETTER

THE AMAZON MATH

$0.15
AMAZON RETURN PER $1

For every dollar Amazon costs today, about 15 cents comes back. The channel loses 85 cents on the dollar.

$20
OTHER RETAILERS PER $1

The same products return $20 per dollar elsewhere, so the products sell. The problem is how Amazon is run, not what's on it.

3×
90-DAY TARGET

Lift Amazon to $0.45+ per dollar by cutting waste first, then fixing conversion. After that, release budget only as each milestone is hit.

Amazon should get the largest share of the budget, because it's where supplement shoppers search, compare and come back to reorder. But a bigger budget only pays off once the channel stops losing money. So the plan runs in three steps: stop the bleed, rebuild the listings to convert, then scale only what has proven it earns its keep.

Where the money is going.

A $0.15 return next to $20 at other retailers rarely comes from one cause. These five leaks are the usual ones, and my first 30 days would confirm which are costing the most.

01

AD SPEND WITH NO EXIT

Broad and auto campaigns bid on searches that never convert, and branded searches people would have clicked anyway get paid for twice. This is usually the largest single leak.

02

ASINS THAT LOSE MONEY AFTER FEES

Low-price bottles often go negative once referral fees, FBA fulfillment, storage, returns and ads are counted. Without a P&L for each ASIN, spend keeps flowing to products that can't earn it back.

03

LISTINGS THAT DON'T CONVERT

Thin images, generic copy and no brand content mean paid clicks land on a page that doesn't close. Low conversion makes every other cost look worse.

04

LOSING THE BUY BOX

Unauthorized resellers and price undercutting take the sale, the review momentum and the customer data. The brand pays for the traffic and someone else rings it up.

05

ONE-TIME BUYERS

Supplements are bought again every 30 to 90 days. Without Subscribe & Save and follow-up offers, the brand pays again to win the same customer every month.

How I'd split the Amazon budget.

Amazon gets the largest share of the total marketing budget. Inside it, every dollar has a job and a milestone. Money moves monthly toward whatever returns the most and away from anything that doesn't.

30%	SPONSORED PRODUCTS: EXACT MATCH & HIGH INTENT Proven keywords and defense of branded searches. Funded first because it converts best.
15%	LISTINGS & CREATIVE A+ Premium content, Brand Store, main images, Dr. Murray product videos. Every ad dollar works harder after this.
15%	SPONSORED BRANDS & BRAND VIDEO Dr. Murray on screen in search results, aimed at category searches the brand doesn't own yet.
10%	RETENTION & REPEAT PURCHASE Subscribe & Save discounts, Brand Tailored Promotions, and reorder reminders to recent buyers.
10%	RETARGETING & SPONSORED DISPLAY Bring back shoppers who viewed but didn't buy, and defend product pages from competitor ads.
10%	BRAND PROTECTION & CATALOG HEALTH Brand Registry, MAP enforcement, removing unauthorized sellers, and keeping listings accurate and compliant.
10%	GATED GROWTH RESERVE Released month by month, only after the efficiency milestones below are met.
How the return triples.

Illustrative numbers for every $100K of current Amazon spend. The real figures come from the ASIN P&L in the first 30 days.

TODAY

$0.15

`$100K spend → $15K back`

Illustrative: every $100K in Amazon spend returns about $15K.

CUT THE WASTE

$0.23

`$60K spend → $14K back`

Pause the 40% of spend on searches and ASINs that return almost nothing. Returns barely drop and efficiency rises more than 50%.

FIX CONVERSION & PRICE

$0.45

`$60K spend → $27K back`

Better listings raise conversion; bundles lift order value above fee thresholds; winning back the Buy Box keeps the sale.

ADD REPEAT BUYERS

$0.55+

`$60K spend → $33K+ back`

Subscribe & Save turns one sale into several, with no new ad cost.

Tripling to $0.45 is the 90-day milestone, not the finish line. The $40K freed from waste goes back into Amazon only as each ASIN proves it can pay for itself. From there, the 12-month goal is a channel that earns more than it costs. The $20 other retailers return shows the products can get there.

THE OPPORTUNITY

30+

BOOKS BY DR. MURRAY

Including the Encyclopedia of Natural Medicine. The authority is already there; the job is putting it where people buy.

1

FACE PEOPLE TRUST

A doctor people can see and hear beats any label claim. Every channel should lead back to him.

3

PLACES PEOPLE BUY

Retail shelf, Amazon, and direct. Each needs its own message and one shared way to measure it.

Four content pillars that feed Amazon.

01

ASK THE DOCTOR

Short reels answering the questions people already search: magnesium forms, what to take with food, what changes after 50. One question, one answer, one product with a reason to buy it.

02

READ THE LABEL WITH ME

Dr. Murray explains what goes into a capsule and why: dose, form, sourcing, testing. It builds trust in the brand and in the plant that makes it, which no competitor can copy.

03

THE LONGEVITY MATRIX, MADE DAILY

His book turned into a 30-day routine series, with a free download that collects emails and sends people straight to the right products.

04

MADE ON LONG ISLAND

Behind-the-scenes content from Coram: quality control, the lab, the people. Manufacturing becomes a story, and a selling point retailers can repeat.

My first 90 days on Amazon.

DAYS 1–30

STOP THE BLEED

— Build a P&L for every ASIN: price minus cost of goods, referral fees, FBA fees, storage, returns and ad spend — Pause or cut bids on every keyword, campaign and ASIN that can't break even; add negative keywords and split branded from non-branded spend

— Move proven searches from auto and broad campaigns into exact-match campaigns with set bids

— Enforce Brand Registry and MAP; file removals for unauthorized sellers to win back the Buy Box

— Rewrite the top 10 revenue listings: title, bullets, main image and backend keywords, with claims checked against DSHEA and FTC rules

DAYS 31–60

REBUILD TO CONVERT

— Launch A+ Premium content, a Brand Store and short product videos featuring Dr. Murray on the top ASINs

— Bundle low-price SKUs into multipacks and routines to raise order value above FBA fee thresholds

— Turn on Subscribe & Save for repeat-purchase products and use Amazon Vine to build reviews on new or under-reviewed items

— Track Instagram-to-Amazon traffic with Amazon Attribution links to earn the Brand Referral Bonus on outside traffic

— Use Brand Analytics and Search Query Performance data to find the searches where the brand is shown but not chosen

DAYS 61–90

SCALE WITH GATES

— Release the growth reserve into Sponsored Brands Video and retargeting only for ASINs above their break-even return

— Run Brand Tailored Promotions for lapsed and repeat buyers, and prepare deal calendars for Prime Big Deal Days and the holidays

— Share Amazon search and review insights with retail and product teams so the whole company sells smarter

— Report Amazon ROI against the $0.45 target, show the ASIN P&L by tier, and set the next quarter's budget by return

WHAT I'D REPORT EVERY WEEK

ROI PER $1

Amazon net contribution ÷ total Amazon spend. Target: $0.15 → $0.45+ in 90 days

TACOS

Ad spend as a share of total Amazon sales, paid plus organic. It should fall as organic rank rises

ASIN CONTRIBUTION MARGIN

Profit per product after every Amazon fee, sorted into grow, fix or cut

CONVERSION RATE

Orders per session on the top 20 ASINs, before and after listing changes

BUY BOX SHARE

Share of sessions where the brand owns the sale, not a reseller

SUBSCRIBE & SAVE BASE

Active subscribers and their monthly recurring revenue

WHY ME
